Talk Saucily to Each Other During a Discussion of the Tariff.

THE COST OF RAISING COLORED MEN

AN IMAGINARY ATTACK ON THE TARIFF.

The Good Results Which Would Accrue From Protected Tin Plate.

The solemn Senators had quite a lively discussion on the tariff yesterday while con- given to me. sidering the duty on tin plate. During the debate Senator Morgan, of Alabama, asserted that the colored people were a detriment to the State, and he wanted them distributed throughout the country.

This was lost by a strictly party vote.

The amendment increasing the duty on tin plate was taken up, and Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, moved to put it on the free list. Mr. Allison said that the committee had decided to allow the present rate of duty on tin plate to stand until the 1st of January, 1890, and that would allow time for the establishment of sufficient plant sin this country to produce all the tin plate needed.

Mr. Jones opposed the amendment and argued in favor of putting tin plate on the Mr. Morgan advocated Mr. Jones' motion to put tin plate on the free list, and said there was no tin in this country.

Mr. Teller contradicted that assertion and said that there was a vast quantity of tin in the Deadwood region.

THE COST OF A COLORED MAN. In the course of a discussion between Mr. acterized the young negroes of Alabama as the most God-lorsaken people (in respect of industry) that was to be found anywhere outside of Algiers or Morocco or the great desert of Sahara. It cost a full $1,000 to raise a negro boy from birth to manhood— not to include his stealings and other depredations. If he could by a decree of law, or of Providence, expel from Alabama every negro in it and have a barrier creeted so that he could never return, the lands in Alabama would run up to prices greater than those in Wisconsin. People would rush there with more eagerness than they were now showing in trying to get into Oklahoma.

Mr. Blair-Do you consider that it would be for the interests of the white Southern people that the negroes should immigrate from the Southern States in a body? WOULD LIKE THEM SCATTERED. Mr. Morgan-Not in a body, and not immediately. But I have been always in favor of the proposition introduced by Sen-ator Windom, of Minnesota, which looked to the scattering of negroes of the South into the Northern States. I wish the Senator from New Hampshire had in his own State 100,000 negroes that we can furnish to him from Alabama. I would be very glad indeed to give them to him. I wish that, among the many societies he gets up, he would get up one for the introduction of negroes from Alabama into New Hampshire, and I will do my best to promote his society, get subscribers for it and get the negroes to migrate.

An Indiana Appointment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 16.—

Justice Harlan has appointed Solomon Claypool Acting District Attorney for the District of Indiana. Mr. Claypool's nomination to that office has not been acted upon people of that State.

Mr. Morgan—The Senator may spare himself all of his invective against the people of Alabama. It will not produce any sort

A LITTLE SPAT. Mr. Blair-I will be very glad to limit my general reflection on the white people of with whom I am engaged in colloquy.

Mr. Morgan—If any providential thing should keep the Senator and me apart I would be thankful. He adds nothing to my happiness; and I think that a more intimate association with him would improve me neither in temper, nor information, nor in any other way. Mr. Chandler spoke in favor of increasing the duty on skates. In the course of his speech he, criticising the opposition of the Democratic party to protectionist ideas, said that that the "Confederate brigadiers" were now trying to carry out the principle which they had incorporated into the Conederate constitution, and meant the destruction of all Northern industries that were protected by the tariff system. They had nothing left to kick, kill and destroy but the protective tariff. That was the business in which they and the President had been engaged for last year; and notwith-standing their bad luck, they still continued to make faces and to kick.

A DEFEATED KNIGHT. Mr. Chandler went on to draw an imaginative picture of the attack made on the tariff by the President mounted on a charger, the Senator from Missouri (Mr. Vest) similarly mounted, and the Senator from Texas (Mr. Coke) mounted on a burro. The charge, he said, made by these three knights of the modern Democracy upon the protective system of the United States had en a futile one. The principal knight had rolled in the dust, and the knight had picked himself up and gathered himself into some sort of shape, very much bruised, and a little dirty, and would probably recharge again with lance in rest. The American people, by the election of a Republican President had effectually protected the industries of the country from the assaults which the "Confederate brigadiers" had been making against what the Senator from Missouri called "the infamous tariff system set up by the Republicans."

CANNOT CREATE INDUSTRIES. Mr. Vest, not noticing the remarks about "Confederate brigadiers," argued against the amendment to increase the rates on tin plate, saying that there was not a single pound of it manufactured in the United States and that there was no instance in the tariff legislation of the country where a duty was imposed for the purpose of creating an industry which did not exist.

Mr. Aldrich admitted that there was not a pound of tin plate manufactured in the United States at present: but said that that fact was owing solely to the inadequacy of the duty. He held that it was as much within the scope of a protective system to create new industries as to maintain existing ones. What (he asked) did the successful establishment of the tin plate in-dustries in the United States mean? It meant the annual production of 300,000 tons of tin plate, and the profitable employment of at least 70,000 people.

There was further discussion on the sub ject, but no vote was reached; and after an agreement that, from Friday till Tuesday next, the daily hour of meeting shall be 11 o'clock, the Senate adjourned.

Pension and Telephone Bills Vetoed.

Arguments For and Against the Admission of New States.

Mr. Struble, of Iowa, opposed the admission of the Territory because a large proportion of her inhabitants were unable to speak or understand the English language.

Mr. Voorhees, of Washington, presented the claims of that Territory for admission.

Mr. Dubois, of Idaho, said that while the Territory which he represented was not now asking for admission into the Union, it did ask for an enabling act which would set a definite time when it could assume the reonsibilities of statehood.

in it against Judge Barnes, of Arizona, be found upon investigation to be true that the Judge be impeached. It is charged that Judge Barnes has endeavored to restrict the constitutional right of American citizens to freedom of speech by fining the editor of the Daily Prospector, of Tombstone, Ariz., $300 for criticising a certain decision of the Court.
